SCAM ALERT!!

Why Is Your Own Number Calling You?

Scammers are using caller ID spoofing technology to impersonate the phone numbers of local businesses, neighbours and even you! Watch out for this new twist on the classic phone scam.

How the Scam Works:

Your phone rings, and you look at the caller ID. You recognize the number. It may be from a local business or a neighbour down the street. In a strange twist, you might even see your phone number on the caller ID screen.

Technology has made it easier for phone scammers to disguise the number calling you. Scammers are looking for your personal information - this includes your credit card number, social insurance number, passport number or permission to access to your computer where they find this type of information themselves. If any unknown number is calling you or you have not initiated the call yourself, please beware and recognize the signs of a potential scammer.

What to do if a scammer calls:

Hang up and don't press any phone keys if prompted to do so. If you received a voice mail message, do not call the scammer back. Beware of what is displayed on your caller ID screen. Scammers have access to technology that lets them display numbers such as your own in an attempt to get you to answer the call. Lastly, never give out any financial information.
